LAWS COLLECTION
1890-1926
2,044 items

DONOR BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

The Laws Collection was donated in 1977 by R.B. "Beverly" Laws, who retired in 1978 as Deputy Chief of Police after over 40 years with the Austin Police Department. He served as "self-appointed historian" of the force, and had previously donated historical records of the Police Department, including "call books" and ledgers to the Austin History Center. Nothing in the collection appears to have direct connection with Laws, and it is not known how he came to possess the records in this collection, the bulk of which are records of the City of Austin's Water, Power and Light Department.

SCOPE AND CONTENTS

The 2,044-item Laws Collection falls into three record groups: Records of the Water, Light and Power Department of the City of Austin, 1890-1926 (1,950 items); Records of Other City of Austin Functions, 1915, 1921-24 (69 items); and Personal Papers, 1921-25 (25 items). The first group documents the activities of the Water, Power and Light Department through correspondence, financial and legal documents, reports, and charts, prepared chiefly during the administrations of three of the department's commissioners when the city was governed under the commission form of government: E. C. Bartholomew (1908-18), Walter M. Eyres (1921-23), and Charles Needham Avery (1923-26). Correspondence (793 items) with the department's customers largely concerns service requests and billing, with the years 1923-25 most heavily represented. Rates for water and power, with costs of service as justification for increases, are documented 1909-20 and 1921-22 (58 items). Dealings with departmental personnel are documented primarily through five payroll summaries 1909-13 and correspondence 1921-23 (55 items). Successive efforts to improve the city's water supply are documented by correspondence and legal and financial documents, in particular concerning Sand Beach Reserve (1917-18), "the water question" 1921-22, and the resulting water purification plant 1923-25. Costs of providing power for the city are documented through correspondence and bids for lignite, especially 1921-22 (130 items), staff cost estimates for specific projects 1910-22 (8 items), and correspondence and financial records documenting the purchase and maintenance of new power generators 1921-24 (over 100 items). Correspondence with the San Antonio based Syndicate Power Company in 1922 discusses proposed bond financing of the city power supply (11 items).

The second group contains records of other city departments and functions, such as Oakwood Cemetery, Barton Springs as water supply and recreation, and tax valuation, chiefly 1921-24. Avery's involvement in professional water associations in 1924 (20 items) and Eyres' purchase of the Elgin Ice Plant 1922-23 (6 items) are included in the third group.

AGENCY CHRONOLOGY
(of events relative to these records)

Until 1871, all water in Austin was supplied by private wells and public and private cisterns. After the City of Austin that year issued the first franchise for privately supplied water, a succession of private corporations attempted to provide water (Austin Water Co., City Water Co., and Austin Water Light and Power Co.), sewage disposal, and power, but numerous controversies and much dissatisfaction with service resulted in eventual city ownership of these utilities.

1890 - bond issue approved by voters to organize municipally owned Board of Public Works, and to finance the building of a water and light sytem, including a dam, reservoir, and distribution systems.

1890-93 - original Colorado River dam built; the resulting reservoir (McDonald Lake, later Lake Austin) provided water supply for gravity distribution system.

1894-95 - construction of power house begun and electric lines and moonlight towers installed.

1895 - electricity generated for light and power. Board of Public Works turned over sytem to City Council and Water and Light Commissioners who were elected by council from their number. John W. Maddox appointed Superintendent.

1896 - four Water and Light Commissioners elected directly by voters. A. C. Patterson appointed Superintendent.

1897 - first filtering trenches and water pumps built on north bank of Colorado River (near present location of YMCA).

1900 - dam failed and power house destroyed, interrupting water and electrical service for over a month.

1902 - city purchased site and equipment of former electric franchise on West 1st Street (adjacent to present location of Seaholm Plant).

1906- new steam generated electrical equipment installed

1908 - electric generating plant built on Colorado River on west bank of Shoal Creek. New water filtration wells dug between plant and river. Water pumps installed in basement of power plant for pumping into distribution system.

1909 - Commission form of government installed in city, with each commissioner in charge of certain city functions. Water and Light Plant falls under Commissioner of Parks and Public Property. E. C. Bartholomew elected first Commissioner.

1911 - contract for new dam let to City Water Works Co., a privately owned promoting company. Numerous problems arose and dam construction was abandoned in 1917 (Tom Miller Dam completed on same site in 1941).

1912-13 - City Reservoir built north of city limits (near Lunatic Asylum).

1917 - first sewage disposal plant built on Colorado River adjacent to Holly Street (replaced by Govalle Wastewater Treatment Plant in 1938).

1923 - water settling tank built just north of power plant.

1924 - construction began on water filtration plant just east of power plant.

1925 - "Filter plant" (now Green Water Treatment Plant) began pumping water from the river, chemically treated for the first time

1926 - charter amended to institute Council-Manager form of government, resulting in the creation of the position of City Manager, who subsequently hired all staff.
